News Story Reports Bell Sent To Canada

by Roger Larson
Daily Universe Writer

HAS BRIGHAM Young University's Y bell became so famous that other inter-mountain schools just can't resist the temptation to "borrow" it long enough to bask in its reflected glory for a few days?

If rumor can be believed the bell is now in Canada.

A phone call to the BYU studentbody offices from a University of Utah student who identified himself as Dave White, a former Cougar, first informed BYU of the disappearance of its bell.

WHITE reported that the Daily Chronicle, student newspaper of the University of Utah published a report that U of U students had possession of the bell.

RALPH RARNEY, Daily Universe editor immediately called Marilyn Reid, Daily Chronicle associate editor to verify the report.

Miss Reid reported that the Daily Chronicle did run the story and said that the information

Norwegians to Entertain BYU Audience Tonight

ONE OF THE finest boy's choirs in the world, the Singing Boys of Norway, will appear in the Brigham Young University auditorium Friday at 8:15 p.m. The young Vikings usually appear first in sailor suits then change into gay Norwegian national costumes with embroidered red, yellow, blue and green trimmings. The boys appear in white shirts and stockings.

The entire choir in Norway consists of 100 voices. For their American tour, 33 of the best voices have been chosen, creating an ensemble that sings great variety of music in several languages, both historic and contemporary.

ORGANIZED in 1927 by its present directors, Ragnvald Bjarne, after he studied for 15 years the chief boys' choirs of Europe, including those of Vienna, London, Paris, Russia, and Germany, the boys choir is making its second tour of the United States.

When a boy's soprano voice changes he is relaxed for a while until his voice develops and then the best are readmitted as young men tenors and basses.

"EVERY YEAR," says Mr. Bjarne, "we lost about ten boys when their voices change. To replace these, we hear every spring 1000 voices of new boys, chosen from schools all over Norway. From these we can admit only ten. Each boy must be able to play either piano or violin, and show that he has a perfect musical ear. After a year's schooling of his voice the new boy will come into the concert choir."

The choir includes not only the boy sopranos and altos but also tenors and bases.

Most of the boys are Boy Scouts, and the group has won many medals and trophies in skiing or skating competition.

Leave the building. We'll make two trips.

Bibler Petitions Due On Monday

Petitions for nominations of Louise Lush, Worthal and Professor Snarf will be available at the Daily Universe office until Monday.

All nominations must be submitted by noon Monday with forty signatures and fifty-words-or-less reason stating why the person nominated in particular is suited for the honorary title.

Students will vote for their choice of characters at the assembly Thursday and results will be announced at the Daily Universe - sponsored Bibler Bounce the next evening.

Dr. Harold I. Hansen, speech department; Howard Larsen, psychology department, and Prof. Albert Swensen, chemistry department are nominated for the Snarf title.

Worthal hopefuls are Joe Kirk, Gary Davis, Ron Safsten, Scott Farmer and Dale Wright.

Nominated for Louise Lush honors are Jeanne McCune, Leanne Ponder, Florence Christie and Virginia Johnson.

Larson was nominated for Snarf "firstly, because of his remarkable resemblance to Professor Snarf; secondly, because of his obvious imitation of Snarf's methods and thirdly, because of his naturally despicable character traits which cannot honestly be blamed on Bibler's creation."

According to signers of Dr. Hansen's petition, Dr. Hansen was nominated "because of his sarcastic snarl when a student happens to stumble across one of his pet peeves; and the sinking sensation caused in the pit of the student's stomach as those eyes piercing into his mean certain destruction grade-wise."

"Safsten is just the man for the Worthal Title," according to signers at the petition. "He never goes to classes and is always trying to be funny but never succeeds. He hasn't had a date for a year and it is against his religion to dance."

Virginia Johnson was nominated for Louise Lush "because she does all her studying while draped over the "punchbowl" in the Science Building. Her chief ambition in life is to date all 13 preferred men in 13 consecutive nights."

Reasons listed on Miss Ponder's petition for her nomination are "She is a twelve hour a quarter student who is notorious for her blond hair, hour glass figure and stinky" ... She is continually changing her major from hallology in the winter to lawnology in the spring."

SNARF GALLERY EXPANDS—Dr. Harold Hansen (left), speech professor, is known for his dry wit, which has on occasion parched his suffering students. Howard Larsen (right), psychology instructor, displays unrehearsed and unasked-for smart-like sneer as he thinks of his brainwashed students.

LOW METABOLISM—Virginia Johnson, left, bush candidate for Louise honors, does all studying over Erying Science Center punchbowl. Center—Ron Safsten, oblivion-bound humorist, experiences heartburn as he recalls first time he dated girl. — Leanne Ponder, right, majors in hallology or lawnology, depending on the season.

McKAY URGES SELF-CONTROL IN Y-BELL THEFT ACTION

President of the Brigham Young University studentbody, Monroe McKay, made the following statement when asked about the theft of the "Y" Bell, stolen Saturday:

"By now you have all heard about the missing "Y" Bell. This is obviously a thoughtless and irresponsible act on the part of a very few persons.

"There is no direct evidence available to indicate who these persons are, nor is there any evidence to indicate that they came from any particular school.

"I STRONGLY URGE every student at the BYU to be very thoughtful and use self-control in reaction to this incident.

"In the past we have had some retaliatory action perpetuated against innocent campuses. No good can possibly come out of this by taking thoughtless actions against other schools or campuses or studentbody groups, no matter how upset we become about the missing bell.

"THE CONSEQUENCES of such acts are extremely serious and result in nothing but sorrow to all who are involved.

"Every possible step is being taken to recover the bell through proper channels and if it is not immediately returned the persons involved will be prosecuted by the law."

MONROE McKAY
ASBYU President.

SUP Readies Excursion Plans for Saturday

Visits to two centers of historic interest in Utah county will be sponsored Saturday by the student chapter of the Sons of Utah Pioneers at Brigham Young University.

A caravan will leave the Joseph Smith Building in Provo at 1:15 p.m. for an initial trip to the John Hutchings museum in Lehi, where the students will view items of pioneer and natural history interest.

Mr. Hutchings will then lead the group to Fairfield in Cedar Valley, site of Camp Floyd. This was the 1858 encampment of "Johnson's Army" in its expedition to Utah in pioneer days.

Students are welcome to accompany the SUP trek, according to Paul Tuttle, chapter president. Additional treks are planned each month during the next two quarters, he said.

Victory Bell Mystery Unfolds—

was received from an anonymous phone call from Logan.

The caller from Logan said the Y bell was stolen in broad daylight Saturday by four U of U students while 150 BYU athletes were practicing on an adjoining field.

THE BELL on its trailer was supposedly hitched to a car with an unmodified trailer hitch and two students rode the trailer to keep it hitched on its journey to Salt Lake City.

According to the caller the bell was at the U of U campus until Wednesday when it was removed to the campus of the Utah State Agriculture College at Logan under a canvas cover.

The bell is now reported to be on the way to an unknown destination in Canada with a stop at the University of Idaho in Moscow.

Inter-collegiate Knights, entrusted with keeping the bell discovered at 9 a.m. Thursday that the bell was not in its customary place in the Smith Fieldhouse. The bell is property of BYU.

I-K officers met in a hastily-called meeting after Thursday's assembly with Monroe McKay, studenbody president and Dr. Henry L. Isakson, student coordinator.

A spokesman at the fieldhouse reported that he saw the bell being taken but assumed that BYU students were taking it to Logan for Friday night's basketball game between BYU and USAC in Logan.

FIELDHOUSE custodians reported that they did not know of the disappearance of the bell.

The custodians also said that they do not have the responsibility of seeing that the bell end do not know when it is supposed to be in its place in the building.

Captain Leonard E. Christensen, campus security officer, Thursday morning told a Daily Universe reporter that he had not as yet been officially notified of the bell's disappearance.

Christensen stated that if he is notified he will file a report of theft with local police.

I-K PRESIDENT Paul Webb said Thursday "The IK's have done all in their power to find a more permanent shrine for the bell."

"Most of our suggestions and offers of money have been turned down.

"We hope this incident might induce the administration to a more active interest in a permanent location and shrine for the bell."

StatementReleased By AS U of U Prexy On Bell Situation

In a telephone conversation Thursday afternoon University of Utah studentbody president made the following statement:

In this morning's Chronicle I was surprised and a little bewildered to read that the BYU Victory Bell had been stolen and taken "up north." I wondered, as I am sure that most University of Utah students had, if the theft had actually been carried out by Utah students.

After investigation of the matter I have been unable to determine who the persons responsible were, nor have I located any one who was

I have satisfied myself, however, that University of Utah students were not involved and that the bell will turn up in the near future. I have discussed the matter with Monroe McKay, studentbody president at BYU, and share with him anxiety about any possible retaliation.

I hope that nothing will be done by any University of Utah student that might involve us. This is not our affair—let us be content to sit on the sideline and merely watch. This can be but as much fun and far less dangerous.

Rob Bennett,
U of U President

Senate Committee Discusses Seating, Elections, Courts

by Karen Larsen
Daily Universe Writer

In discussing Senate controversies, the Senate Steering Committee convened Wednesday to clarify the problems of saving seats in the assemblies, timing student body elections and preparing a new court system.

The Assembly committee, headed by Maxine Stuart, had not agreed on a solution in solving the controversy of saving assembly seats. The opinion of a few is that saving seats in a limited area of the green seats should be allowed

The problem was debated by the steering committee and some felt that a law should be passed forbidding completely the saving of seats and others felt that it should be permitted to save seats.

The Executive council will be conferred with on the matte Kimi Stuart said.

The problem of what group should hold studentbody elec tions and at what times was de bated at length. The Steerin committee decided that som definite action should be take to settle the problem and con sidered courses of action to fol low.

A committee under the direc tion of Rich Hunter, Govern ment Organization Project chair man, is preparing a new court system under a judiciary branc of studentbody government.

At present the studentbod court system is under the juris diction of the Inter-Organiza tional Council. The new court system has been pending for some time and the date for com pletion is uncertain

That's Rich

by Rich Hall

THE ACID test is about to be put to Brigham Young University's boisterous claims of the past few weeks that the Cougars are the only basketball squad in the conference capable of winning on the road.

Cast in the role of the villain to Cat hopes for remaining undefeated atop the conference are the Farmers of Utah State.

NOTHING WOULD please the Utags more than to knock off the league-leading Cats. Last year they started BYU on the road to losing the conference title by handing them a defeat at Logan. The stage is set again for the Farmers to try the same thing.

If the Cougars can get past this game with a victory, there is every reason to believe that the conference crown will return to BYU after an absence of five years. If the Farmers emerge victorious, the battle for conference honors will be thrown into a mad scramble, with Utah and BYU deadlocked in first place, unless the Utes bow to Montana Saturday.

SINCE THE Aggies managed to hand the mighty Redskins a loss in the first conference outing for either team, the Logan club has been cast in the role of spoiler. But many people have recently begun to feel that the Aggies could conceivably take the conference bunting this year via the back door.

If enough other teams knock off each other, and Utah State can keep its win record intact for the remainder of the season, the Aggies could end up number one. And perhaps Coach Cec Baker has that one all figured out.

At any rate, Utah State will like nothing better than to clobber the Cougars at this stage of the league race. And the Cats will be made very happy by bombing the Utags off their own floor. Promises to make for an interesting evening of basketball.

THE "Y" BELL is gone. Some clever souls managed to enter the fieldhouse, hook a car up to the trailer the bell is handily left on, and steal BYU's victory symbol away.

Not only that, but evidently the "big steal" was made last Saturday and the people at BYU are finally finding out about it five days later.

A long time ago some school spirited students dreamed up the idea of having a "Belle of the Y Week," with the proceeds from the various activities to go toward stocking a permanent home for the bell somewhere on campus. According to the information we have been able to receive at press time the reason that this permanent home has not yet been provided is that a "suitable location" has not been found.

"BELLE OF THE Y Week" has been a regularly scheduled studentbody function since the late 1940's. It seems to us that in a period of almost ten years some sort of a place more permanent than the back of the fieldhouse could have been found.

For a long time the bell was buried in the boiler room of the steam plant. Finally, at the advice of the security police on campus, a "safer" place was found for the bell, the place, evidently, from where it was taken last Saturday.

THE EVIDENT apathy of studentbody officials toward the bell and everything concerned with it has been appalling. In fact, it seems, no one could care less.

The Intercollegiate Knights have been the only organization on campus seemingly interested enough to take care of the bell at all. And without help from anyone else they have done a good job in all respects but one, the guarding of the bell.

All these events point up to one big need; a place on campus to keep the bell. If the studentbody and officials aren't interested enough in the "Y" bell to take proper care of it maybe we should just give up the whole project of having it.

Cougars Journey North To Meet Spoiler Aggies In Skyline Crucial

by Mark Murphy

Every time a harried Stan Watts turns around, its another "Cousin" for him and his Cougar cage five.

This weekend offers no exception nor reprieve for a Cat squint that is hitting the mid-season mark after a torrid early-season schedule. The Brighams face a very domestic Utah State squad Friday night in Logan.

Coach Watts, the round ring master of Cat hoop varieties, will probably include some relaxing pills or bicarbonate of soda in his luggage for the Aggieville trek.

The fact that BYU is top dog in the Skyline does not engender incentive for Coach Cece Baker's hustlers. The Aggies, not always the class of the league in all time powers as Utah, Wyoming and the Cats, to contend with, have a rightfully earned reputation as spoilers. In general to Utah, the crafty Farmers would rather tie a can to the Cats' tails than play hay.

Of course the red hot Cougars will go into the Cache county hustle as big favorites. This leaning toward the Cougars is bolstered by results of last week-end when the Brighams bombed both Wyoming and Colorado A & M while the Farmers took two on the chin from the same teams.

Past performances lose tons of meaning when these ancient foes meet. Utah State's earlier win over Utah on the Logan floor has the Wattmen plenty worried. However, a worried team is better than a complacent one and Coach Watts wants this one badly.

For the first time this year, the Cats will be facing a team they can look down to. The Cougars have finally found a guy shorter than they are.

As a result Friday's battle will feature those which learned the means of off-set. 7 height disadvantage, zam bunda speed, endurance and concentration on that one ol ball which is their usual allowance.

BYU, after its fourth straight conference win, will feature starting lineup that has been fixture since the UCLA game.

Johnny Thackeray, ranking points per game in conference play, and Lynn Rowe, 13.7 hold down the forward slots, the guard line will be Hatch, the leading conference scorer with a 20.0 average. Harry Anderson, Anderson, though averaging less than points per game, is definitely boss man on the floor.

Center will be filled by steadily improving Roy Thackeray. Thackeray has established himself as one of the conference's stronger men in the land has compiled a healthy point production average.

Interesting is the fact despite much tub thumping teams of publicity Pearl Bird, giant Ute center, is only ahead of Thacker in points per. Thacker has points to Thacker's 36 in 3 games.

The Utags also have a st starting lineup which is hea by the Ute's leading scorer, forward Ted Smith who is t captain of the Farmers. Lockyer, the only big man the Aggie five at 6-5½, will on at center and is averag 13.5 points per game.

Hal Theas, 6-3 Sophomore from Logan is starting mate forward. Theas, a junior c gersity of Utah transfer, ha games because of ineligibi but has stepped right into starting lineup and is count upon heavily on the boards.

The guard line will Frank Polak, 5-10, and La Bailey are averaging 10 points per game. Polak is the pro of the duo, a product of Farr hero, and is said to be m Aog followers forget the fe of Dunn.

Cat Groaners Host Western State Saturday Night

Wrestlers from Western State College will invade Coach Albert Smith fieldhouse Saturday night at 7:30 for a dual meet with Brigham Young University's grapplers.

The Cougars, making their first home appearance, expect to be pushed hard from the Gunnison, Colorado grapplers who are personally strong in grunt

Last week, wrestling without the services of two of their top men because they failed to make their weight divisions, the Cougars were bombed by Utah State, 27-3 in Logan.

Cat coach Allan Davis, who laments the fact that BYU is "very inexperienced". Is encouraged about the "fight and team spirit" of his grapplers.

Davis said that Paul Eckel, sophomore in the 177-pound division, will probably be ready for the Western State encounter.

The Rocky Mountain boys from the Colorado cattlelands have two all conference men in Rod Houston, 177 pounds, and Gene Williams, 123 pounds.

BYU Frosh Tangle With Ag Rambler

Brigham Young University Kittens invade Logan to tangle with the Utah State Frosh in a preliminary tussle at 6.15 Friday night.

Sporting a record of one win in the season are fancy their big test of the season. Utah St Ramblers, with a victory o Hill Air Force Base and an ov time loss to the powerful U versity of Utah freshmen, be playing their third game of the season.

According to Coach Rob Bunker, the Kittens "look good with players from Utah, Ida Nevada, Oregon, Washing Arizona, and Wisconsin "If t tell and work together as a te they have a bright future," H per said.

In their one previous game BYU's frosh defeated Hill Force Base, 81-52. Varg Cel led the winners with 11 poin followed closely by Dick Sa ver, and Valoy Eaton with points each

Feather Title Stripped From Sandy

by International News Service

The National Boxing Association has stripped Sandy Saddler of his World's featherweight championship because he failed to sign for a title defense by midnight Wednesday.

SADDLER, who won the title twice from Willie Pep, the last time in 1950, was warned last week that he would be dethroned if he failed to sign for a title bout. He has not defended his crown since Jan. 20, 1956.

The NBA's rating commission made the announcement today in Milwaukee.

TERRY Sawchuck of the Boston Bruins, has voted the National Hockey League's midseason all star goalie, has been suspended for life by NHL Bill Schmidt for quitting the team.

"He has only one out," said Schmidt, "that's if he's mentally sick."

Sawchuk, a three-time Vezina Trophy winner with Detroit, walked out on Walter Brown's office Wednesday and announced his intention to retire. The star netminder complained that he was upset, had lost his timing and wanted to call it quits.

BERT BELL, National Football league head, announced today he will meet with Attorney Creighton Miller and players Kyle Rote and Norm Van Brocklin Jan. 28 to discuss player demands.

Bell said he told Van Brocklin and Miller the talks would be informal, since he is not in a position to make any commitments for the owners.
